Holy Gratitude - by Fr Frederick Faber

What We Should Give Thanks For

- The boundless charity of God, by which He has first created the world and redeemed it
- His preparation of eternal glory and His specially and distinctly thinking of each one of us.
- The multitude of personal blessings that we have received from the unmerited goodness of God
  - A temptation overcome, a vice subdued, or an imminent danger avoided.
  - A virtue long prayed for.
- For past and present humiliations, unkind interpretations of our words, unloving deeds, inconsiderate omissions, or unfriendly intentions. It is not perfect gratitude that is fed by favors only, for you can tell who is truly grateful when sincere thanks are given in the midst of calamities.
  - For the occasions of sin to which we have never been exposed.
- For God's ability to work great things in our soul even when we impede his efforts by not being open or trusting enough.
- For all the graces that has been given to those who have lost themselves by their own willfulness, trampled on the sacraments and
  - blaspheme his name.
- For all the worship and adoration he is receiving at this moment throughout the earth for all the sacrifices being offered,
  - all the prayers being said, and Masses offered for his glory.
  - For all His angels and His saints
- For the gift of faith and all the supernatural wonders of our holy religion.
  - For all the blessings that we never asked for and those that came to us without our knowing it.

In every gift given by God, no matter how trifling, three things are to be considered, the giver, the gift and the affection with which it was given. God is an inexhaustible ocean of goodness, the fountain of His liberality cannot be dried up when He meets with a considerate and thankful mind into which He can pour Himself.

No gift is small that comes from God.

Say "Deo gratias" many times a day.
